

I have secondhand knowledge

 reddit.com/r/aliens/comments/18cgurv/i_have_secondhand_knowledge

2.1k

Posted by u/alesneolith
28 days ago

Discussion

Introduction

Please note that I will be vague in some places about any identifying information, credentials, locations, people, procedures, etc. I don't want to be identified and harassed.

I have a professional background in anthropology. I also have some informal experience in philosophy, which unexpectedly ended up being the most useful of my skills on this project. Previously, I worked for a university in the western United States. For cultural reasons, students and faculty at this particular university are more likely to be selected for sensitive government work. I suspect that I was selected because of my low profile, my squeaky clean history, a lack of any drug or alcohol use, my broad range of skills and knowledge related to human civilization, and some connections that I have in academia. My most significant work has been in ethnography and cultural anthropology.

Why Reddit?

I'm sure you're wondering why I am posting this here instead of sending this information somewhere more important. Since the UAP hearing happened and other whistleblowers have come forward, I felt safe enough to speak out privately. I don't know how useful my testimony was, and I felt like I was brushed off. As I'll get into later, I don't have any documents to hand over or any firsthand experience with UFOs or ETs. I do have trust in our institutions to do their job, come to the right conclusions, and eventually begin disclosure. I have a hope that the truth will be widely known in the near future.

I wasn't interested in or involved in the UFO/alien phenomenon prior to starting my work. As the work progressed, I became convinced that there was something very real behind all of this, and now that I'm released from the project, UFOlogy has become a special interest of mine. I think now is a good time to put my story out there.

The Work

In early 2017, I was contacted by one of my connections at the university, who urged me to apply for a position in a 'special research project,' claiming that the project needed someone with my experience, the pay would be good, and that they would help me get in. This individual helped me apply and gave me a rundown about what to expect from the hiring process. This process involved an extensive background check, applying for a security clearance, several interviews, and training for security, communication, and working with sensitive information. Going through the ratmaze took several months, but I made it through much faster than anticipated and was finally ready to actually begin working in early 2018.

I was apprehensive on my first day of work. I had jumped through all the hoops, and I still didn't know what the subject of the research was. I didn't feel comfortable with all the security. (I'm on the spectrum, and while I'm good at masking, procedures and bureaucracy make me confused and nervous.) The workday began by entering a secure facility where my identity was verified with ID and biometrics. After passing through, I would go to my workplace and have to pass through another layer of security. In the workspace we were monitored constantly and subject to random security checks.

The workspace was a medium-sized set of offices where I and six other researchers worked, one of which was assigned to train me. Each of these researchers had different backgrounds and were assigned to a different part of the project.

Over the next few days, my trainer walked me through the research process. It was then when I finally learned what the subject of the research was. My trainer gently explained that we were working with information about an 'exotic intelligence,' meaning a sapient non-human species of an unknown origin. Our job was to take the information that had been provided for us from outside sources, sort it based on its content and usefulness, and in the end produce a comprehensive report that summarized what we know about this intelligence, with a special focus on its motivations and intentions. This report could then be used to brief elected officials in the future, and even the public. We were allowed to make certain assumptions in the report, such as that these beings and their motivations could be understood by humans and that the information we have is accurate.

I had endless questions and became distraught, and I think they could tell because my trainer figured it would be best if I was given time to myself to read some of the material and digest the information. As I learned more, the shock faded and my fear was replaced with curiosity.

A lot of the work wouldn't be very interesting to the members of this sub. The average workday consisted of going through security, getting permission to retrieve certain documents, then organizing and annotating the documents. Much of the documents were only related to the subject in tangential ways and didn't convey very much of use. In a sense, we were separating the wheat from the chaff and getting the material ready to be used for the project. After finishing, we would secure the workplace and leave. Over the months that followed, we slowly built up a corpus of useful information.

I obviously do not have the report with me, and it has been a while, but I will now relate to you the most important information that I can recall related to these beings. Feel free to ask questions. Note that I worked the most on information related to their society and motivations.

Origins

We know more about every other aspect of these beings than we do about where they actually come from. We do have some tentative ideas and speculation, but multiple hypotheses are still on the table. As I'll get into later, there is good evidence that life on earth and these beings share a common ancestor. Our job is to keep an open mind and let the evidence lead the way instead of falling for our own pet theories or cultural prejudice. The extraterrestrial hypothesis makes some sense but it's not the only option. During work, my colleagues often called them 'aliens' or 'ETs.'

In the interviews I've read, the interview subjects are vague, absurd, contradictory, or evasive when asked about their origins. Perhaps this is because we aren't in a position to understand where they come from, or perhaps there are problems with communication. Maybe they simply don't want us to know.

Appearance and Biology

In regards to the appearance of the ETs, UFO mythology is dead on.

Generally, they look like diminutive humanoids with large heads, reduced facial features, and very large eyes, which are sometimes covered in a transparent black film. (Earlier specimens usually do not have the film, later specimens do.) Their average height is ~5 feet tall. They have two long arms and two legs. They have three long fingers and an opposable thumb. They have feet with four toes. They may have fingernails and toenails, but not always. When they do, they are mottled and dark. They have no reproductive organs or anus, and they secrete waste through their skin, similar to how we sweat. They ingest liquid food just like we do. They wear clothing, usually in the form of a very thin blue or gray high-collared garment, as well as boots.

Their heads are large, as mentioned before. In some individuals there are pronounced ridges on the head and upper back, which seem to relate to different kinds of implants in a way that is not understood. As far as we can tell, every individual has an artificial lattice woven through their brain and nervous system. I'll get into that later.

No two individuals look exactly alike. Head shape, eye shape and size, the patterns and protrusion of the ridges, and skin color vary between individuals.

Life on earth and the ETs share the same kind of biochemistry. They are made of cells, use DNA, proteins, etc. They can be studied and understood with the same principles that we use to study life on earth. This has fed into speculation about their origins. The most conservative hypothesis is that they share our biochemistry because they also originate from earth, but there are other theories. Life on Earth and wherever they come from could both be descended from a common ancestor. Perhaps life everywhere in the universe shares the same biochemistry.

The striking similarities between their anatomy and human anatomy leads me to wild speculation about whether the individuals we see are specifically designed to resemble humans in order to facilitate interaction. There is a small collection of biological material that has been retrieved from craft that shares no resemblance to humans and defies description. This material is like a web of nervous tissue which is interlaced into the structure of the craft itself.

Technology

Before, I mentioned an artificial lattice which is integrated into the nervous system. This lattice is at the heart of their technology. In interviews with subjects, they demonstrated the ability to communicate with and detect the presence of others of their kind in the same facility, in different rooms. Tools retrieved from craft would be responsive to the touch and intentions of the ETs but would be totally inert in the hands of human operators. This lattice is probably what makes these abilities possible. It is made of ordinary elements like copper and aluminum, and there is no discernable reason why it should be able to do what it seems to do.

We were allowed access to documents that described the capabilities of their craft as well as eyewitness encounters, but we were not allowed any data that would explain how their propulsion systems work or about anything regarding the reverse-engineering of craft. The reasoning behind this is obvious. The special interests involved have begrudgingly begun to accept that disclosing the existence of the intelligence is necessary over the long term, but the one thing they refuse to do is relinquish their monopoly over exotic technology. I don't have much insight to give about the craft because the project focused more on the extraterrestrials themselves, their society, and implications for our society.

The craft have a wide range of appearance, size, and behavior. It seems like each craft is designed for a specific purpose. Every craft is different, but they can be grouped based on shape and purpose. There are some edge cases that won't fit into this neat categorization.

There are hundreds of objects in orbit that are likely created by this intelligence. At first glance, they look like commonplace space debris, but on rare occasions they will move in a way that is not attributable to gravity, meet with another object, or expel an object. Tracking these is very difficult, and we know very little about them, including their size.

The most commonly seen objects are large reflective orbs or pills that move at high speeds. Usually they are only seen for a second, but on other occasions they follow aircraft, hover over sensitive locations, move in strange, illogical ways, and even suddenly disappear. At night these orbs sometimes emit orange light, although other colors can also be seen. These objects have been seen submerging into the ocean as well as other bodies of water.

There are egg-shaped craft which move in more predictable ways, although they move much faster than man-made aircraft. We were allowed to have a lot of information related to these. These craft are the most likely to fail, and they are manned. Biological material and even living organisms have been recovered from these craft. These are the most interesting to me, as they contain occupants, living spaces, and large rooms full of equipment. We speculate that these are surveyors or scientists. In one particular case, a craft of this kind contained samples of earth biota. There are no control panels or any kind of obvious mechanism for controlling the craft. This kind of craft has unfortunately become more uncommon over time.

The classic flying discs and crescents have the greatest presence in popular culture but they are not the most common object. These are speculated to be stealth vehicles that are used for reconnaissance and research. On many occasions these have landed, completely empty.

The Interviews

Because of my past work experience, most of my work on the report was related to actual interviews that had taken place with ETs. They were retrieved from crashes but also from landings, where the craft seemed to have landed on purpose and the beings came voluntarily. Reading these was very surreal, and I suspect the context of these interviews is part of the reason for so much secrecy. The way that they were treated was inhumane and very unethical.

The ETs have a very close relationship with their technology. They cannot survive very long while separated from their craft and from each other. They can't eat anything other than a special kind of liquid food, and human-made substitutes were not sufficient replacements. Throughout their stay on Earth, they would suffer from malnutrition and a kind of toxic buildup in the body. Because of how valuable they were, every effort was taken to keep them alive and conscious, even against their wishes. The situation reminded me of the case of Hisashi Ouchi.

Something that deeply frustrated me was that they seemed to want to show us so much more, but because of the irresponsible behavior of the program, they could not. They were separated from their craft permanently so the craft could be hauled off elsewhere and auctioned off, and so that the program would have total control over the interview process. Because of this separation, the ETs would slowly die.

Communication took place through telepathy. They can read our thoughts and 'send' thoughts and impressions into our minds. However, this takes a lot of concentration on the part of the interviewer and communication would break down as the health and consciousness of the subject declined. The interviewer and the ET would communicate telepathically, then the interviewer would say the exchange out loud for it to be recorded.

Society & Motivations

From reading interviews with detained subjects, I and other researchers were able to put together a rough picture of how this species works and why they are here. Instead of having any kind of formal social structure, these beings form a dynamic superintelligence that is a composite of all of their minds. Reproduction doesn't take place biologically, instead they are artificially created, with each one designed for a specific purpose as their society has need. The intimate interlinking of their minds causes them to behave as one superorganism rather than individuals.

To get into why they are here, we have to understand their philosophy. 'Philosophy' is a human word made for human contexts, so it may not be appropriate to use that label, but I will use it anyway. They have a monistic, reductionist ontology which bears heavy similarities to cosmopsychism or objective idealism. As far as I can tell, their philosophy is naturalistic but has some elements that could be misconstrued as religious. They reduce time, space, and everything to the behavior of a single unitary consciousness. (Not to be confused with the superintelligence that I mentioned earlier.) This consciousness behaves entirely spontaneously, without deliberation or forethought.

According to them, the minds of living organisms are parts of this consciousness that has 'looped in' on itself, creating separation and individuality. The process of evolution has caused some organisms (such as ourselves) to develop higher cognitive faculties and mental complexity which allows for complex thought and self-reflection.

Our perceptions are the mental activity of this unitary consciousness as it is filtered through our minds and presented in a way that is most advantageous to our survival as individual 'loops'. We model the patterns of our observations as the laws of physics, but the laws of physics have no inherent existence except as the patterns of this universal mental activity.

They believe that as life continues to grow and complexify, it will have an effect on the unitary consciousness that constitutes the universe. As life proliferates and complexifies, it will cause it to attain higher cognitive functions and eventually reach self-awareness. They believe that the universe is already blindly striving toward self-awareness and complexity, and they seek 'move it along,' so to speak. This is their goal, and it's presumably why they are here on earth. They are guiding the development of life on this planet to help serve this end. I have no clue why they are so motivated to move toward this goal or what the actual implications would be if they succeeded. It also leads to other questions. If any of this is true, time itself is merely a construct created by this unitary consciousness, so how could it change and develop? How does this universal consciousness fragment into individual minds, and what relationship does this have to biology and the origin of life?

They are not afraid of dying because they believe that death is just a process where individuality breaks down and the mind 'unloops' and becomes reintegrated into the unitary consciousness. They believe that memories and life experiences are reabsorbed into the consciousness during this process, perhaps this is the mechanism that allows it to develop. Whether or not this is true, it seemed to bring them a lot of peace during their tormented final moments. Even in death, they served their purpose.

Their philosophy shapes the way their society is organized in profound ways. They have intentionally designed their technology in a way that integrates the mind and obscures individuality. They do not fear death, and even embrace it when they have fulfilled their purpose. They have a positive attitude toward living organisms and ecosystems, because the flourishing of life is integral to them achieving their goals. However, they do not respect individuality and they see individuals (including themselves) and species as expendable in the service of their goals. In the interviews, they voiced concern with the impact that humanity is having on life on this planet but also see us as a step in a process of complexification. They are definitely monitoring how life is developing on this planet, and it is very probable that they are subtly manipulating it to serve their goals. The similarity between their biology and ours makes me wonder whether they seeded earth with life to begin with. Maybe this planet has been their project from the beginning.

My thoughts on disclosure

I've been keeping up with this topic for a while now and despite recent events, I feel very optimistic about disclosure. This isn't the kind of thing that can be kept a secret forever. They are here to stay, and a secret this large can only be kept for so long. None of the information (At least none that I learned during the project) is anything that would threaten civilization or cause a mass panic, people are much more resilient than that. The cat is clawing its way out of the bag, and I don't think it's going to be forced back in without tremendous effort. The important thing is that ordinary people like you keep putting up resistance and support whistleblowers. I hope that the report I helped to write eventually gets out to the public, me and my coworkers put a lot of effort into writing it.

777 comments

Comment as Plenty_Pudding_7232

|

View discussions in 2 other communities

level 1

Real or not. Glad to hear that nothing you were involved with would make you think that civilization is threatened.

Real or not. Bummed to hear that they were treated poorly.

278

6 more replies

3 more replies

level 1

"Previously, I worked for a university in the western United States. For cultural reasons, students and faculty at this particular university are more likely to be selected for sensitive government work."

90% this is BYU in Utah. Mormons are over-represented in the MIC and security clearances, because they generally don't drink/do drugs, have strong sensitivity to taboo, social stigma and can't be blackmailed easily. And the UAP phenomenon aligns with the "many worlds" mormon philosophy. And they often have families, which are useful collateral.

edit to add: VICE NEWS, 2020: "UFO Subreddit Was Subject to Systemic Censorship:

The moderators of Reddit's UFO community automatically censored posts referring to 'Brazil,' 'Navy,' and 'Pentagon.' "

391

level 2

Comment deleted by user · 27 days ago

8 more replies

level 1

Can the mods chime in and give some explanation why the OP account has been suspended?

Edit: I reached out to the mods and they replied that OP deleted their account. I'm not sure if this is the case though since it shows that the user has been "suspended" when I click on the profile.

204

3 more replies

level 2

jforrest1980

· 27 days ago

This group owns every major media outlet on Earth, and has trillions of our tax dollars. I would be a fool to believe r/aliens hasn't been compromised for many years.

72

level 3

Mathfanforpresident

· 27 days ago

I have had some post remove from the UFO subreddit when talking about the galactic federation. They told me it's because it didn't involve UFOs but it literally talks about a ship called the alliance spacecraft. either way I was banned for a month after explaining my position and then posting it again. The UFO subreddit has fallen to infiltrators. I'm 100% convinced after reading this.

VICE NEWS, 2020: "UFO Subreddit Was Subject to Systemic Censorship:

thank you nicobackfromthedeath4 for showing this article

30

4 more replies

1 more reply

2 more replies

level 4

probably talking about the ebo scientist. here's the link. The account showed up exactly like the account in question (u/alesneolith) It showed his name still, it did not show the u/deleted like it usually does for deleted accounts. But when you click on his name it does the same thing that it does with OPs in question today. It just looks like it has an error when you go to their account. But their account name still shows up.

From the late 2000s to the mid-2010s, I worked as a molecular biologist for a national security contractor in a program to study Exo-Biospheric-Organisms (EB0). I will share with you a lot of information on this subject. Feel free to ask questions or ask for clarification:

edit: strange that ebo scientist edited their post and said "it seems like all my comments are being deleted"

26

1 more reply

2 more replies

level 2

WHATYEAHOK

· 27 days ago

Probably not. Mods can't perform account-level actions like that. They can only ban you from their own subreddit, delete your posts in their subreddit, etc.

The site admins, employed by reddit, are the ones who are responsible for his suspension.

21

1 more reply

7 more replies

level 1

This might explain why Leslie Kean and others have become interested in near death stuff now from their UAP investigations?

This 'cosmology' seems to be floating around in a few stories, matches the famous "bioscience" whistle blower as well.. more positive than some others like the insidious "soul recycler" ect ..

Some questions I would have — are you aware of any other alien species and what are their role in this? It seems Grusch and others have referenced multiple such visitors..

This is all high concept quasi religious stuff. But are there no finer details? How long do they live? What is life like in the shared consciousness between "individuals"? Why do they want to tell us about the meaning of existence but not even what planet or where they are from?

67

level 2

King_Cah02

· 27 days ago

Some questions I would have — are you aware of any other alien species and what are their role in this? It seems Grusch and others have referenced multiple such visitors..

I am not OP but I doubt they would have knowledge of other species as different SAPs and CIA Projects handle different aspects of the Phenomenon. These gray guys are only one of the types of NHIs that exist on and/or near this planet right now. Grusch was only able to come to the conclusion that there are multiple sources of the UAP Phenomenon due to him knowing so many different people who were active within these separate SAPs. Some deal with ETs, others deal with UAPs, a few most likely deal directly with UTs (Ultra-Terrestrials), the occult and mysticism directly in order to get some UAPs to run in the first place. Very interesting stuff, horrible that the UAPDA was practically ripped apart right in front of our faces.

29

1 more reply

level 1

hftb_and_pftw

· 28 days ago

To your knowledge, is the CE5 phenomenon real? Is it really possible for ordinary citizens to make contact through thought alone? And if so, what are the parameters or process that are most likely to lead to success?

Do you have any further insight as to why they hide themselves from us? Are they wanting disclosure as much as we are?

I'm sure that posting this was not an easy thing to do, so thank you.

131

level 2

Thanks for your kind response.

I don't know about the CE5 phenomenon itself, but our visitors definitely have the ability to manipulate and interact with the human mind, as I stated from the interview. Interviewers needed to become sensitive and concentrate in order to communicate with the extraterrestrials. If they wanted to communicate, they could.

131

level 3

fleshyspacesuit

· 27 days ago

When I was reading your report, it oddly sounds like we are consciousness inside some other beings brain, and these "aliens" are genetics in this being making sure consciousness grows like it is supposed to, especially if we understand consciousness as something different than pure biology. We are the being becoming conscious of itself, much like we do as an adolescent, and the "aliens" are the DNA of the being making sure these processes take place.

64

level 5

I also love this comment and thought of a very similar take in 7th grade regarding cells and if they're judged by "god" on their individual soul/consciousness (debating/questioning Christianity ideologies of judgement day/death) lol

8

1 more reply

4 more replies

level 4

lolihull

· 27 days ago

What were your conversations like if you don't mind me asking?

Were they cold towards you because they don't like individuality or interested in you because of the wider single consciousness goal?

13

2 more replies

2 more replies

1 more reply

level 1

AngrySuperArdvark

· 27 days ago

Just in case this is true and one of these aliens are reading this, i do not support the way your kind was treated on this planet, most of us don't and please don't wipe us out we had no idea this was happening. We do however give our full support for you to wipe out the poeple who did that to them.

306

level 2

JigglyEyeballs

· 27 days ago

Given their philosophy described here (and what was said here is very similar to something that was posted a while back, similar stuff was said) I doubt they'd be that petty.

It would be like us nuking that island with the primitive tribe on it because they throw spears when they see our ships or helicopters.

39

level 3

[deleted]

· 27 days ago

I hope if this is true there is a vigil for those interstellar folks who crashed here to teach us a thing or two. Brave as hell to come here on their own and not even use any weapons, knowing they were outnumbered. I could devote my life to being the custodian to that testament.

11

5 more replies

1 more reply

1 more reply

level 3

OnTheSlope

· 27 days ago

Did neither of you read the post?

Supposedly individuality is meaningless to them and individuals are expendable.

The suffering of an individual is irrelevant as long as it has no significant impact on their end goal.

19

1 more reply

1 more reply

13 more replies

level 1

anty328

· 27 days ago

Thanks for the story. I have a few questions though.

- When describing them, you seem to strive away from calling them a Hive Mind. Is there a reason for that?
- You assume one of the reasons the Gov is keeping quiet on the topic is because of how aliens were treated inhumanly. You then go on to describe a race of beings that don't seem to care about individuality and have superior technology. Could the reason for their inhuman treatment was due to prior inhuman encounters with the civilian population, abductions etc?
- And I know people will hate that I'm asking this but from your opinion. If our race doesn't want to be part of their cosmic religion, what would you expect to be the outcome if we resisted?

77

level 2

1. I don't call them a hive mind because in fiction, the hive mind usually has a top-down association. There's a leader of the hive that imposes its will on its minions. This is different, and I think it would be insulting to refer to them as a hive mind. They still have individual minds, they are just deeply connected to each other and to their technology.
2. They don't care about individuality the way we do, but they are not overtly malicious as far as I can tell. The inhumane treatment of the extraterrestrials was because of hubris and greed. The first priority is to get the craft hauled off to be studied. The extraterrestrials are separated from their craft over long periods, which causes them to suffer. That being said, I do think that abductions happen. They study all life on this planet, and that includes us. But I don't think the cruelty toward our visitors was borne from vengeance.
3. I don't think they care to convert us to their philosophy. All that they care about is for life on this planet to keep proliferating and moving forward. If we become a barrier to this goal, they will intervene. They prefer to take the subtle approach, but if we become a bigger problem for them they might have take a more direct approach.

145

3 more replies

level 3

anty328

· 27 days ago

Interesting take.

Respectfully, it does worry me that you express that there are deep cultural differences between us and them but they are still entirely benevolent? It seems a little unrealistic, that or you're looking at them through rose tinted glasses since you've studied them for so long.

It just doesn't seem consistent to me. Maybe it's because I'm still seeing them through a human lens but differences create friction between factions and that's something we see even in the animal kingdom so I don't exactly exclude that war gene to just humanity, all living things challenge each other.

I guess that sorta leads me to this, do you think after all the fancy tech and interconnected telepathic links, would you still call them living? You said they manufactured and design their offspring, would you still consider them living or machine?

20

level 4

I think they're benevolent in the same way that we're generally benevolent to animals in the sense that we'd prefer animals to be treated humanely, so long as they aren't a nuisance, and if we do need to experiment on them we try to not inflict too much suffering.

We are not a threat to them in the whole. A single shark can hurt an individual person, but as a species sharks pose no threat to humans. We can potentially potentially down an individual craft, but we pose no risk to their civilisation.

We're a complex species, which makes us interesting to them, in the same way that we find primates or dolphins interesting.

We don't really have any reason to want to go around exterminating dolphins or chimps (or most animals for that matter, unless we deem them pests). I think they view us the same way.

I think they're 'benevolent' only in the sense that it makes little sense to exterminate us. It would be like us one day deciding to go and exterminate all butterflies.

17

1 more reply

level 4

Papa_Glucose

· 27 days ago

I don't particularly care for the politics of my pet lizard. To be fair. He hates me. Hisses at me sometimes. But I'm gonna keep feeding him and taking care of him.

26

14 more replies

6 more replies

17 more replies

level 3

lolihull

· 27 days ago

If we ever do learn the full truth about this particular species of NHI, there will be so many YouTube videos comparing hoax posts to reality and seeing how many times we got things right :')

19

level 4

AsleepAtTheFeel

· 27 days ago

That is easily going to be one of the most satisfying things following disclosure. Seeing grifters get exposed like that is going to be DELICIOUS.

7

1 more reply

1 more reply

level 1

Yesidied

· 28 days ago

Thank you for your post!

Couple questions:

-Do you have any classic ufo mythology pictures of aliens that closely resemble what they look like? (Not an actual photo but one from lore most similar)

-You mentioned they just landed in some cases, where and why these locations? are these specific or just relevant to their duties- ie landing to study for example

-Possible to guess how many are interacting with earth in any given day?

-Any mention of Nuclear? I know our lore shows the ET/visitors seem most curious with nuclear power so didnt know if this was mentioned by them or us to them.

46

level 2

1. I did not see any photos of bodies, but I did see diagrams and illustrations of what they look like. I'll try to find a picture that closely resembles what I saw and get back to you. One thing to keep in mind is that their appearance varies from individual to individual. Here's something to look out for if someone claims to leak photos. I would think the photos are more likely real if they show the ridges on the head and spine, that part of their anatomy doesn't seem to have widely diffused into pop culture.
2. The locations seem to be relevant to their duties. Some common places are nuclear testing sites, irradiated areas, areas with high biodiversity, areas with industrial contaminants, agricultural areas, feedlots, etc.
3. I don't know that one, and it would depend on how you define interaction.
4. They are definitely concerned with nuclear weapons. As I mentioned before, they are concerned with the impact that humanity is having on life on this planet. If we had a nuclear war, a lot of damage would be done that would set their project back.

level 3

BrainFukler

· 27 days ago

Regarding point 1): Can you specify on the pupils/irises/eyes described, without the black film?

14

level 4

lolihull

· 27 days ago

I can't remember where I saw it but a few weeks ago I found a picture someone had made using AI of a classic grey but with human eyes - iris, pupil, whites etc. It looked comically terrible but i suppose it's likely to be fairly accurate given their other similarities to us.

6

2 more replies

1 more reply

6 more replies

level 1

Okay, what the fuck.

My thoughts:

1. You're obviously intelligent. Your level of vocabulary is impressive and you used it correctly.
2. Most of this has been said by others in some form, so you're either an astute follower of this topic and pulled everything together to make your story, or you have real knowledge of this. I'm going to give you the benefit of the doubt.
3. The ETs being concerned about life flourishing on earth lines up with the idea that they're so concerned about nukes. Nukes don't only kill humans, they kill all life within a radius.
4. Could you expand at all on the unitary consciousness? Specifically this part: "Our perceptions are the mental activity of this unitary consciousness as it is filtered through our minds" Is their idea that when we die we will be looped into the same consciousness as them? How does that work exactly and what level of cognition do living things maintain after death?
5. Would you be willing to speak to Ross Coulthart, Garry Nolan, or David Grusch? People like you need to connect with these people to help each other fill in any knowledge gaps. Everyone would massively appreciate it. They may be able to direct you to an Inspector General as well.

Thank you for posting this. Super intriguing. It's unfathomably, relentlessly frustrating that we have so many whistleblowers and zero confirmation from the gov't. I want to see the damn bodies.

21

3 more replies

level 1

kundaninja

· 27 days ago

"To be the eyes and ears and conscience of the Creator of the Universe, you fool!" - Kurt Vonnegut

17

level 1

downunderplus61

· 27 days ago

You mentioned UFOs are auctioned off, did you mean something else by that or are various businesses competing for these vehicles? Does it go to the highest dollar bidder, the highest profit share of intellectual property or the company most likely to crack the code with the best personnel for that craft type? Or some other criteria?

35

level 2

When I said 'auctioned off' I was being a little hyperbolic. I don't know that much about the process of how craft are handled and studied but I'm sure it's a political process. The main point is that the extraterrestrials are separated from the craft, which causes their condition to deteriorate. Most of the interview subjects were from landings, not crashes.

65

level 3

Nowhereman2380

· 27 days ago

If it was landings, was it purposeful contact? How were we prepared for these landings so quickly?

12

level 2

JagsOnlySurfHawaii

· 27 days ago

Have you seen Jurassic Park Dominion yet. I said it before here a while back that, that is exactly what is happening to the recovered UAP. Shit goes to the highest bidder.

18

level 3

TomAce1962

· 27 days ago

Capatalism uh.. finds a way

33

1 more reply

level 1

pineapplewave5

· 27 days ago

level 1

AngrySuperArdvark

· 27 days ago

Have you any information about how the beings reacted to the way the researchers treated them? Did they get angry, did they swear revenge, were they sad all the time? I wouldn't judge them.

16

3 more replies

level 1

Nonsensicus111

· 27 days ago

level 1

satanicpanic6

· 27 days ago

This also seems to align with the Ra Materials and the Law of One.

33

level 2

Zavax

· 27 days ago

level 2

argumentdesk

· 20 days ago

level 1

Redpig997

· 27 days ago

Another one bites the dust

11

level 1

Agenbit

· 26 days ago

OP's name is an anagram of "Hotel Aliens" Just an FYI for folks.

15

1 more reply

level 1

KaleidoscopeThis5159

· 27 days ago

I'm going to make a logical leap here, based on reports from other sources and my own research.

The artificial lattice is copper and silver [like another alien that has been reviewed] and possibly has an altered crystal lattice, making it "super conductive" [or something like that] so it doesn't heat up when electrical currents flow through it. (Pretty important for something under your skin)

11

4 more replies

level 1

PsyAlienNirvana

· 27 days ago

There is no way that there is even a remote possibility that you would spread information like that publicly on the internet. If someone published top secret information of this caliber on Reddit they would certainly end up very badly. I can't understand how people can believe you and in any case these are attitudes that keep us away from a serious awareness on the subject. I saw a UFO up close, at a distance of just a few meters, something that definitely CANNOT be human technology, it just didn't make sense according to our physics, I know they exist, against all reasonable doubt, so I find it very important that we start having a more serious attitude towards them , because I, like many others, have seen them seriously and it is clear that we are being observed by one or more more advanced civilizations and it is time to address the topic properly and stop with misleading stories.

13

level 2

n0v3list

· 25 days ago

Researcher

Well, the thing is that all of this is extremely compartmentalized. I know that from personal experience. There's no universe where someone who is an anthropologist is sat at a cubicle and handed all documentation on any one facet of this. Nor would it be disseminated in such a casual fashion afterward. If you had a clearance, you'd know how carefully you have to approach every aspect of life as a result.

These stories, as fun as they are, do not help in our quest for answers. They fill the void with misinformation and temper the desire to know the truth.

10

level 1

AcrobaticElk69

· 27 days ago

Sounds similar to the lawofone which has interesting CIA roots

29

level 2

OwnFreeWill2064

· 27 days ago

Imsorrywhattellmemore

8

2 more replies

level 2

datboy1986

· 27 days ago

level 1

shine0n4ever

· 27 days ago

Two spaces after periods and the Oxford comma. My man.

30

level 2

antiqua lumina

· 27 days ago

You don't need two spaces. That was a convention for typewriters. Word processors can pad the space automatically. It's a terrible sin to do two spaces on a computer.

12

2 more replies

5 more replies

level 1

bookvacuum

· 27 days ago

level 1

Kavinski

· 27 days ago

There are a few possibilities for how a copper and aluminum lattice integrated into the nervous system could theoretically enable telekinetic abilities:

Amplification of neural signals: The lattice could act as a kind of signal booster, amplifying the electrical signals in the nervous system to allow the brain to send stronger outputs to muscles. This amplification could allow precise control over muscle groups to manipulate objects from a distance.

Electromagnetic field manipulation: The lattice may interact with the bioelectric fields produced by the nervous system to manipulate external electromagnetic fields in the environment. Changing EM field strength/patterns finely enough could allow exertion of force on objects remotely.

Quantum entanglement: The lattice materials could become quantum entangled with external objects. Manipulating the quantum state of the lattice could then instantly affect entangled objects through quantum correlations. This could allow movement of objects without physical touch.

Consciousness focusing: If consciousness has subtle but real effects on quantum systems (per theories of quantum cognition/consciousness), the lattice could help concentrate and direct consciousness toward intended outcomes. Focused consciousness could then bias the probability of objects moving in certain directions.

Reality alteration: The lattice might enable manipulation of a holographic or simulation-based reality, allowing imagined changes in objects/locations to be actualized. This would be the deepest explanation but requires a non-materialist understanding of existence itself.

Of course, the mechanisms behind any putative telekinetic abilities remain highly speculative. More research would be needed to reveal if quantum processes may in fact underlie such anomalous mental influences. The lattice may enable something further from our current scientific understanding altogether.

36

4 more replies

level 1

johninbigd

· 27 days ago

level 1

ClassicMembership685

· 27 days ago

Damn this is like a book

11

level 1

Beelzeburb

· 27 days ago

As above so below.

9

level 1

[deleted]

· 27 days ago

What does a society based on individualism do to the unitary unconscious once they pass? Very interesting, thank you so much for posting.

9

level 1

shane0273

· 27 days ago

This was fascinating to read! Thank you for posting.

8

level 1

Rachemsachem

· 27 days ago

I deleted a kinda entitled comment complaining that you didn't write more. Sorry it's just incredibly frustrating, like getting a whiff of bread from the bakery while your outside starving.. ...please consider writing in more detail.

14

level 1

JewelerGeneral4861

· 27 days ago

Are they male and female?

14

level 2

alesneolith

Op · 27 days ago

That's a more complicated question that it seems at first.

'Male and Female' is how the sexual divide in humanity works. The extraterrestrials reproduce artificially, so there are no genders or reproductive organs. That being said, you could group them based on their different appearances, (for example, the pattern and shape of the ridges.) there are different 'archetypes,' so to speak.

56

level 3

TsjernoBill

· 27 days ago

level 3

lolihull

· 27 days ago

Aww our little Enby ETs 🥰

7

level 2

duuudewhat

· 27 days ago

They're non binary

5

2 more replies

level 1

pagla07

· 26 days ago

This post is suspiciously similar to one made by a Molecular Biologist who also disappeared after making a very detailed about things they worked on in a secret program. This post is organized in almost exactly same way and discusses very similar subject matter just without a lot of the technical details in the prior post.

https://www.reddit.com/r/aliens/comments/14rp7w9/from_the_late_2000s_to_the_mid2010s_i_worked_as_a/

6

level 1

Goldbert4

· 27 days ago

Researcher

I'm not accusing OP of lying, but if you're familiar with the 4chan whistleblower and the alien biologist post from a few months ago you'll see a lot of the same stuff in this but combined together. That either makes this a corroboration of that data or a LARP combining other LARPs. Gotta love Ufology.

43

level 2

johninbigd

· 27 days ago

level 2

duuudewhat

· 27 days ago

I'm guessing a larp integrating multiple larps. A larp machine if you will

3

3 more replies

level 1

tonkatruckz369

· 27 days ago

level 1

Xethrops

· 27 days ago

Is there any way to contact them directly?

7

level 2

techgirl8

· 27 days ago

1-800 ALIEN

6

level 2

Papa_Glucose

· 27 days ago

Yeah they have a P.O. Box

9

4 more replies

level 1

Oak_Draiocht

· 26 days ago

They have a monistic, reductionist ontology which bears heavy similarities to cosmopsychism or objective idealism. As far as I can tell, their philosophy is naturalistic but has some elements that could be misconstrued as religious. They reduce time, space, and everything to the behavior of a single unitary consciousness. (Not to be confused with the superintelligence that I mentioned earlier.) This consciousness behaves entirely spontaneously, without deliberation or forethought.

According to them, the minds of living organisms are parts of this consciousness that has 'looped in' on itself, creating separation and individuality. The process of evolution has caused some organisms (such as ourselves) to develop higher cognitive faculties and mental complexity which allows for complex thought and self-reflection.

Our perceptions are the mental activity of this unitary consciousness as it is filtered through our minds and presented in a way that is most advantageous to our survival as individual 'loops'. We model the patterns of our observations as the laws of physics, but the laws of physics have no inherent existence except as the patterns of this universal mental activity.

They believe that as life continues to grow and complexify, it will have an effect on the unitary consciousness that constitutes the universe. As life proliferates and complexifies, it will cause it to attain higher cognitive functions and eventually reach self-awareness.

Experiencers have been telling people this for decades. People need to start listening to us.

Various philosophers - quantum physicists and other scientists and spiritual thinkers are also coming to these conclusions.

This is not a coincidence.

https://www.reddit.com/r/Experiencers/comments/169f4ca/its_happening_and_i_am_so_grateful_to_be_here/

6

3 more replies

level 1

SkeezySevens

· 27 days ago

Would you post some links of publicly available alien photos/videos that you can verify are not cgi/hoaxes?

16

level 1

jforrest1980

· 27 days ago

If they want to speed up the process, how about landing on the White House Lawn or Time Square and calling out all the ass-clowns holding back disclosure. Let's lock those cucks up.

No one on Earth, except the 0.001% in power want world domination and the death that comes with trying to obtain it. We want peaceful, meaningful lives.

I don't know if their purpose is valid or not, but it sounds better than all the killing and pillaging going on down here, so, sign me up.

Also: This falls in line with my theory that they are manufactured beings designed to pilot a ship. Probably working for the man who is sitting in another Galaxy.

9

4 more replies

level 1

RaketenRonnie

· 27 days ago

Does anyone still have that video of the interrogation where the ET gets a seizure and they send in the medical team? Want to rewatch after reading this

4

level 2

exztornado

· 27 days ago

Here you go:

<https://youtu.be/TvamS6X5l2I?si=cqVNufBhdsaxnRzo>

He (Victor the leaker of the video) also did an interview with Art Bell:

<https://youtu.be/hOnTIG8zoSY?si=SauaI3inWLQNno32>

And there's a bonus video with him from 2008 so years after the first two videos:

<https://youtu.be/2aMavw9IJ0g?si=5KjgDszkBCmCF6i9>

https://youtu.be/4_ETuczuTM8?si=UjIYwGhN4sZP5IPQ

7

level 3

RaketenRonnie

· 27 days ago

damn you came in clutch!

Thank you very much

4

level 4

exztornado

· 26 days ago

No problem buddy. This is the only one I have believed in. No other alien interviews or autopsy videos have struck a cord. So I had it on deck. I hope I'm wrong though because if what he says is real and it sure seems like it. It's time to start praying and looking at reincarnation.

5

3 more replies

1 more reply

level 1

One_Feedback2461

· 27 days ago

What is the true reason behind cattle mutilations?

4

level 2

duuudewhat

· 27 days ago

They like beef

3

2 more replies

level 1

Bleezy79

· 27 days ago

Thank you for writing this and for your work. Posts like these are why Im on reddit.

4

level 1

Federal-Bath-1938

· 27 days ago

This tracks. I think it's worth everyone reading. I wish the dominant global force wasn't the military industrial complex. We could have increased the prosperity of the entire planet and better protect our environment if we could treat the others with respect and dignity. If this is their belief system, it sounds like they can be negotiated with and a symbiotic relationship could be established

3

level 1

palvaran

· 27 days ago

Parts of this remind me of the Law of One.

4

level 1

Tistouuu

· 27 days ago

level 1

VisibleStaff309

· 26 days ago

level 1

Sea_Path_4152

· 26 days ago

If anyone wants a thorough and comprehensive explanation of how to understand "idealism" that OP mentioned, read "More than Allegory" by Bernardo Kastrup.

A lot of people in physics are moving toward a post-spacetime view of reality which exactly matches what OP described here. There is ample evidence for this being correct and Kastrup explains it more clearly than anyone.

The book I recommended does an incredible job of pulling you through the rabbit hole and you will finish it understanding what it means for space time to be a construct or interface rather than as the ground state of reality as our current popular model in science treats it.

3

4 more replies

level 1

grumazu

· 27 days ago

All this seems familiar. I have heard/read this theory before, not sure where.

Which makes me think there must be some truth here.

10

level 2

TimeCntrlingUnicorn

· 27 days ago

You're probably remembering another recent post from someone else who claimed to be a scientist who worked on EBEs. The themes are similar.

11

1 more reply

level 2

King_Cah02

· 27 days ago

EBO Molecular Biologist mentioned this idea of "apotheosis" and the Monroe Institute's Gateway Experience CIA-Military correspondence documents go into detail on the "unitary mind" or creator being the source of everything.

12

1 more reply

level 1

kryslcer

· 27 days ago

People from this university were chosen by the government for "cultural reasons". Da fuq did anon mean by this??

14

level 2

tweakingforjesus

· 27 days ago

Mormons.

41

level 3

chadwarden1337

· 27 days ago

level 3

Crispytoast25

· 27 days ago

Yep. My guess is this person worked for BYU. Mormons often get recruited into positions that require security clearances within the government. Keeping secrets, avoiding drugs/alcohol, working hard, patriotism, and supporting a cause even in the face of opposition/inconsistencies are all hallmarks of the Mormon experience. Many of them speak other languages due to missionary service. Apparently this mix makes for solid government employees. I personally know several Mormon friends who work for government - as ambassadors to other countries, in the FBI, and in the CIA.

23

1 more reply

4 more replies

level 2

BreadAndRoses411

· 27 days ago

BYU

4

level 3

krys2lcer

· 27 days ago

Ooohhh ok. I've read that before, that the feds like Mormons because they believe it's their sacred duty to serve the homeland or something culty like that so they make good little robots that stay in line.

Poor OP might go to jail and hell if he's a Mormon.

14

3 more replies

level 1

MeanCanadianTheFirst

· 27 days ago

Everything is consciousness, and the "glue" of consciousness is Love. "God is all in all, through all." Love in its truest sense is a law of being.

The placebo effect is a good example of thought's effect on reality as reality is mental.

16

11 more replies

level 1

KingAngeli

· 27 days ago

Yeah, that's our one true purpose-to become god

Did they say anything about a missing link?

3

level 1

Even-Ad9704

· 27 days ago

Can you please post a drawing of the aliens. Please.

3

level 1

wheniwaswheniwas

· 27 days ago

level 1

Sprinkles-Pitiful

· 27 days ago

the earth is shifting to show humanity the true reality of this universe; the spiritual teachings and science will soon intertwine. consciousness is the missing link to realising how connected we all are in the spiritual. we are all part of source consciousness.

3

level 1

Gold_DoubleEagle

· 27 days ago

level 1

Smooth-Evidence-3970

· 27 days ago

UAP/UFO Witness

I got goosebumps/vibrations all over my body reading this. While I have a belief in never being scared/fearful and believing fully in the duality of mankind, I can see why for many this would be a catastrophic disclosure in itself if it were to be disclosed willingly for many people. Some folks from older generations, or newer -ego death rocks many people. It still rocks me. I fully support disclosure but also see the possible (negative) societal consequences. Interesting that the take on their philosophy is exactly what Bigelow and the US govt (dare I say Russia as well?) with their MKUltra/Montauk project did was based on the question of what is consciousness? Bigelow went from the phenomena is more than just Aliens and material saucers, it goes deeper than that, and what's deeper than consciousness? After all, it seems to be the only thing that isn't so alien and shared between two different intelligent/sentient beings.

If anyone's been following all the esoteric/consciousness/Alien tech claims and stories of how it works and their origins and all the other stuff that people labeled as crazy/disinfo even if proven to be disinfo, watched movies regarding NHI, the information presented isn't far fetched. The deeper question here will always be consciousness. It's the one thing we all share similarly whether alien in its differences to experience whatever the heck reality is.

3

level 1

mistaekNot

· 27 days ago

level 1

SlickSnorlax

· 27 days ago

On this topic, once it starts getting into the philosophy of the beings, I had one hangup.

If these beings value the development of consciousness in the pursuit of individual experiences to integrate back into the universal consciousness, why are they themselves so unified? It would seem to me that they would value individual consciousness and experiences if they were consistent to this belief. Maybe their origin is the answer?

Unless there is a different goal, or there is some other nuance to the story, I'm slightly taken out of the 'immersion' of this post. Are there any other thoughts about this?

7

level 2

AustinJG

· 27 days ago

There was a scientist a few decades ago that talked about something like this. He believed that all tool using species would eventually evolve into a sort of unified mind out of need for survival. The reason being is that if we continue as individual (and groups) tool users we will war with each other over resources until we destroy the planet. This is mainly because we all have individual egos. When we become a unified consciousness, we will all have one shared ego, so we will no longer see each other as the "other", but as another part of ourselves. This stops the warring and brings peace, which allows us to move forwards as a species.

It was a trippy theory. I wish I could remember the guy's name.

21

level 3

duuudewhat

· 27 days ago

That's brilliant

2

level 2

DecemberRoots

· 27 days ago

My own two cents, but maybe every civilization reaches a point of evolution where the individual experiences of it's members become less valuable and the experience of the "civilization" or group as a whole becomes a sort of individual experience in itself.

I don't know if I'm wording this correctly, but imagine for instance as if China, after thousands of years of evolution of each of it's individual members, eventually reaches a point where they've all individually "seen all there is to see", so to speak. The next step is that they'd reach a level of unification where their group becomes it's own entity and the experience of the entire nation becomes a form of "individual" experience, different from, say, that of the US group-individual.

I know using countries isn't the best analogy, I'm not sure how to explain this thought much better. I hope you get the gist of what I mean.

10

level 3

lolihull

· 27 days ago

Kinda like how AI works I guess - scrapes info from multiple sources, then consolidates what it finds to produce an output. It can produce a variety of different outputs that are each unique and "individual", but they should all be an equally valuable interpretation of the source material with no one "better" than the other.

Like perhaps these beings have individuality but there's no heirarchy of value when it comes to things like skill set, lifestyle, social standing, moral worth. They are just different interpretations of a universe-wide scrape of information. Hmm 🤔 interesting to think about thank you!

3

level 4

AustinJG

· 27 days ago

It's my understanding that they do have individual selves, but are still part of a greater whole. One way I read it explained is that you could meet one of these beings that you've never met before, but it'll recognize you because others in the collective have met you and enjoyed your company before. So while they may have an individual self/personality, a lot of stuff is shared.

I imagine the advantage of this would be massive. Being able to share memories of joyous events, or even terrible ones. Imagine if the people that were victims of the Holocaust for instance could share their memories and experiences directly with all of humanity. Not just like in books or video, but the actual memories and experiences are shared with the rest of humanity! It would end so much violence and bloodshed almost over night. We would all understand one another. It would also negate the need for a government, as we'd all be the government in a way.

3

level 5

lolihull

· 27 days ago

With the way humans are now you'd be just as likely to create a group of people who'd desire vengeance for the pain and suffering they got to experience. Even though you're right, in an ideal world it would be the type of thing that created understanding through empathy and compassion for each other.

Maybe that's why these beings with their more uniform nature and slightly nihilist view of individuality, are better suited to have that ability/power.

We're too unpredictable in terms of how we react to a piece of information - one person's good news is another person's life ruined. I suppose if you're going to try and learn about the most terrible and beautiful parts of the universe (and everything in between), it's helpful to know your colleagues aren't going to start having a psychotic break mid-field trip to earth.

3

1 more reply

level 5

duuudewhat

· 27 days ago

Is this kinda like the home tree in avatar? The sharing of information

2

level 6

AustinJG

· 27 days ago

I'm not sure, I haven't seen the movie in over a decade. But I imagine it would be like having everyone connected to a "cloud" server that contains everyone's experiences and what not. You'd also be able to interact with each other through it.

3

level 2

Moist_Lion9975

· 26 days ago

1 more reply

level 1

bread_scent

· 27 days ago

How can we know this is not a larp post?

14

level 2

johninbigd

· 27 days ago

level 2

LongLetterhead7083

· 27 days ago

Its possible these youtubers and UFO enthusiasts are making it all up but its still thought provoking and helping us think about our place in the universe.

great story either way. hopefully we find out the truth about all this in our lifetime.

6

level 2

Quantro_Jones

· 27 days ago

What I find interesting is how closely some of this matches to the Ebebiologist post from a while ago that ended up being declared a larp. Coordinated disinformation, corroborating testimony, or larpers building off of each other?

13

level 3

King_Cah02

· 27 days ago

| Ebebiologist post from a while ago that ended up being declared a larp.

It was never "declared a LARP" but in fact the opposite. A lot of misinfo surrounds that post and I really cannot explain why. The OP was shadow-banned evidently in the thread. The "OP" appearing around that deleted commenter's name was only a screenshot done on a faulty update on the Reddit app that shows all deleted accounts as "OP" on threads regardless of who posted the comment. I wish disclosure would happen because the existence of the Non-Violent ETI is something that should be made public for embetterment of man-kind (separate class of NHI than the ones the abduction, close encounters phenomenon and cryptid encounters phenomenon is connected to, those are the Celestials).

This is real and has a lot of backing with other testimony regarding the study of NHI. The problem is is that we're all looking for one group of NHI when the UAP phenomenon is a mixture of a bunch of different groups of various levels of esoteric and exotic existence. These Non-Violent ETI reflect a path humanity can reach in their future if we make certain decisions, the others (celestials) represent different aspects of nature such as the planets and our "physical laws". There is no way for me to convince everyone because we can't even figure out where each group comes from, hence why some believe this specific faction comes from a parallel universe overlapping our own and that the bodies are created here alongside those "built-to-spec" craft. The craft are alive, them being made here and sharing our biochemistry would explain the drunk DoD brother in law thinking that they were made by humanity when in fact they are from somewhere separated from "here" but merely via trans-universal travel). This would imply the "unitary mind" or "source" that we can make self aware to reach Apotheosis exists entirely independant from individual psychic consensus instances (universe) and that we share a collective unconscious from beings within the multiverse.

This phenomenon is incredibly complex and even OP wasn't aware of the bigger picture because the Program recruits brilliant people unaware of the field's history and feeds them incomplete info so when they come forward they give out a small part of the phenomenon that is "incompatible" with the whole sum of info available to the public.

This is a very valuable post and I will be preserving it.

31

level 4

quiveringpotato

· 27 days ago

For real, I'd love to meet these guys and learn about how the universe works from the way they understand it. I do not want these absolute ghouls in the MIC and CIA in control of this. They do not represent humanity.

12

level 5

Ridiculousnessjunkie

· 27 days ago

I agree with you. The gatekeepers of the United States do not speak for all of humanity and it is terrifying to think that they could or do. These people are the biggest threat to our safety, not the visitors. The unbelievable ego of these select few humans is mind blowing.

10

level 3

klbm9999

· 27 days ago

It's not just the EBO guy, this description of manufacturing vehicles of various shapes and specific functions matches the 4chan leaker post as well. Still not off the larp radar though.

13

2 more replies

level 2

krys2lcer

· 27 days ago

Because him and the students and faculty of this western university were chosen for this top secret project for “cultural reasons” Thats how you know it's not a LARP

6

2 more replies

level 1

forsaken1969

· 28 days ago

Hello 🙌

7

level 2

xereo

· 27 days ago

Hi 🤖

5

level 3

T-mark3V100

· 27 days ago

Researcher

3

level 3

LongLetterhead7083

· 27 days ago

sup

3

level 3

duuudewhat

· 27 days ago

Oh my god it's an alien. Quick! Say something smart

2

level 2

mamacitalk

· 27 days ago

sometimes I'm alone, sometimes I'm not 4

level 1

Taar

· 27 days ago · edited 27 days ago

Please note that I will be vague in some places about any identifying information

Ok, but then you go on to say background in anthropology... worked for a university in the western United States... significant work has been in ethnography... In early 2017, I was contacted by one of my connections at the university... began working in early 2018

Why provide such specific identifying information? Surely that's enough info to have outed yourself unless there were a dozen other people who started working there in 2018 from BYU with significant work in ethnography. For OP's sake I hope this is a larp, because if it's not, OP might want to assume a new identity before they turn up in the next batch of Soylent Green for the little Borg caretakers.

Most of this matches up with existing lore/facts, no genitalia, excretion through pores, partially cybernetic, the role of the ETs as caretaker. It's certainly a pleasant take, there's no mention of harvesting our souls for their sexual gratification or deviant enslavement, pretty much all sweetness and light so if it's true, well that's just peachy. Seriously best case scenario. Sad about their treatment obviously.

Maybe I'm just being paranoid (or am I?) but doesn't this sound a little too good to be true?

My main critique though is that if it were me, and I were spilling the beans on a secretive government agency, I would certainly not include any details about myself - when I started, where I'd been before, what my previous work involved, how I got the job. It's not relevant and it'd probably get me killed, so why?

9

level 2

duuudewhat

· 27 days ago

I noticed the contradiction as well. They basically described enough to identify them if the government was watching. At that point why not just reveal yourself

5

level 2

NoRetributionNoPeace

· 14 days ago

2 more replies

level 1

Se-R-N-ame-Use-RName

· 27 days ago · edited 14 days ago

Very suspicious , this is..... pushing a “ not afraid of death if it advances the goal” and no respect of individuality..... pushing forward to advanced goal because we are all the same unity.... I would caution everybody to be careful with any kind of narrative like this, very very dangerous on levels that may at first seem hard to imagine

10

level 2

Papa_Glucose

· 27 days ago

What's concerning is that it aligns so well with MOST religion. Seems like they've actually been reaching for something tangible. They won't see it as a win. They'll see it as a challenge.

6

level 3

Se-R-N-ame-Use-RName

· 27 days ago

A "challenge" rather than a "win" Intriguing comment To be honest , I am sometimes slow and I'm missing something within this. Elaborate

2

level 4

Papa_Glucose

· 27 days ago

The existence of a universal consciousness (god) and aspects of that cosmology align directly with many religions, including Christianity and the other big ones. Many Christians at least will not accept this new paradigm, and claim it to be a made up idea since it doesn't align with their view of what god should be.

2

level 5

KujiraShiro

· 27 days ago · edited 27 days ago

As someone who grew up extremely super Catholic (went to Catholic school and the whole shebang) and hated literally every second of it, I disagree with you that Catholics would reject the idea/it doesn't align with their viewpoints.

It aligns WAY too much with the Catholic idea of what God is, and this frustrates, scares, and upsets me more than you can imagine.

In the Catholic view of God, he is the creator, he was there before time, will be there after time and is time. This fits with the idea of "all reality being the dream interface of god consciousness". If time only really exists in the godhead, then it is indeed accurate to say that God is before and after time and "always existed" and that he is in fact "the creator of all reality". Catholics who have actually read the bible (and not just your typical "I go to Church so I'm a good person but literally couldn't tell you the first thing about Jesus" types) will also typically understand that the story of Genesis (like a large amount of the old testament) is not meant to be taken at literal face value, and so the creation myth would not be in opposition to this idea that God unconsciously dreams reality into being.

The pope has claimed that the idea of NHI does not go against the faith. I suspect many priests and theology scholars would likely agree that this interpretation does not really go against the faith, and more or less confirms it to be true; as absolutely horrifyingly awful as that is for someone like me who has been terrified of the idea of God and how "you're gonna go be one with him forever and ever in heaven" since having the idea abusively forced onto me from childhood. This is literal worst case scenario stuff for someone like me who is traumatically mortified at the idea of being forced to "be part of something beyond yourself that actually is yourself but isn't". FUCK. THAT.

I've long held a personal belief that individuality is sacred and beautiful and is why we are here to begin with; to experience individuality and learn to love one another in spite of our differences. What true love is there in loving others "because they literally are you". That's narcissism and also terribly lonely and shallow. If individual souls are truly their own individual souls then love is all the more meaningful and beautiful because then it takes EFFORT to love that which is beyond yourself, those which are different from you. If we're really all just one big melting pot of consciousness that has been tricked into thinking we're not just the same thing, then that is quite literally the saddest thing I can possibly imagine because it means that the only love that exists in the universe is a love of self which is THE most heartbreaking thing I can think of. It means everyone you've ever loved is not actually real, because you're not actually real, and because the differences between the two of you aren't real.

The actual worst thing that could possibly ever happen to me is to find out that "God is real and the Catholics mostly had it right", not because I'm scared of going to Hell but because I'm mortified at the idea of Heaven existing as according to the Catholics (where your individuality goes and becomes part of God forever when you die). If I'm forced to "become part of God" then that means it's literally impossible to love another because there is no such thing as an 'other'. You can take literally anything from me but I refuse to let my ability to love others be taken from me and I would gladly cast myself into Hell if it meant retaining my right to an individual soul that can appreciate and love others beyond just "that's literally me how could I not love that". We ARE all connected in oneness, existing together as separate and unique individuals who all experience their own lives. THAT is what makes us one, that we are ALL different. I don't need to "be part of the oneness of God" to appreciate and love others for their differences and inherent beauty. All sentient beings should have the right to choose for themselves what they "merge or become one with". Nobody has any right to anybody else's body, mind, or soul without their consent.

I'm too traumatized about the idea of God to ever "willingly become part of a super-conscious collective" or any other sort of "total oneness". I'll go down kicking and screaming and burning in Hell before I let my soul and memories "become one" with a God that has never made himself known to me or made me feel loved when I most needed it. If my chosen path is akin to "trying to swim headfirst into the current of a river" then I'll walk straight down the middle of the river and face that current head on no matter how little progress I make, so long as it means I never allowed myself to be swept up. Even if I lose I'll make sure whatever beats me knows I never gave up, because I dared to believe that individuality and love go hand in hand as opposed to being opposite to one another.

3

level 6

Se-R-N-ame-Use-RName

· 27 days ago

I understand you , however I believe there are some pieces to the puzzle (that when you find) will put you at ease and give you peace and even joy . It is of my understanding that if you want God as your God, he will be but if you don't, he will not force that upon you..... that's just a small consolation in your case it would seem..... but there is much more to bring relief.... Do you know anything about the blue castle ?

3

2 more replies

level 6

Papa_Glucose

· 27 days ago

I think you're conflating this idea of a god with your Catholic upbringing. Sure there are similarities. I bet the Vatican knows all this already. I don't however think it's that simple. If this is a real post, then God values us for our individuality, and our progression as individual entities furthers "gods plan." I think there's some comfort in that. Unfortunately our own personal beliefs about what "should" be need to be thrown out the window. It makes sense for me. Think of it like the Force in Star Wars. Probably singlehandedly the best explanation of this. It's universal life force that connects with all living things. When we die, we return to the cosmic force. All our loves, hopes, dreams, interactions, permanently etched into the memory of this larger force. Every moment we've ever lived, every kiss, every death. It sounds kind of nice tbh.

3

level 7

Comment deleted by user · 26 days ago

2 more replies

level 5

Se-R-N-ame-Use-RName

· 27 days ago

I often think that if Jesus were alive today , (in human form) , then he would likely not be a “Christian” I am a lover of Jesus , but not so much , of everything that's been done in his name

2

9 more replies

4 more replies

level 1

[deleted]

· 27 days ago

For those interested in the philosophy portion, I highly recommend looking into the work of Bernardo Kastrup. He has been championing a version of Idealism much like what is suggested here, individual consciousness as a loop in a great cosmic mind.

2

level 1

No-Cap-2473

· 27 days ago

Years ago I had a sudden moment of clarity and recognized us conscious living beings as the “eyes” of this universe that is becoming aware of itself... Strangely their evolution of universal consciousness resonated so much of what I realized back then

2

level 1

Campbell_Hayden

· 27 days ago

Firstly, thank you for making the decision to post this. There is a lot of insight involved here, and I can assure you that for many of us, that insight is as interesting as it is appreciated.

It would appear that ‘telepathy’ can affect, comprise, create, and dissolve many more things than we can even begin to suppose. Yet, and despite this realization, it seems as though the Aliens you are speaking of in this narrative consider Existence to be just as sacred as life itself. I find myself comparing their heightened specificity and acceptance of what is actual to them, to Deism.

With regard to Humanity’s nuclear travails, it appears that for many decades, Aliens have taken notice of what Humanity’s militaries have been up to with regard to atomic & nuclear weaponry. Whether they turn a system on, or off, they continuously seem to demonstrate that they can basically neutralize any nuclear event by simply taking control of our ability to launch the weapons that would cause it.

This is to say that, by knocking out a weapon’s entire long-range delivery system, including its missile and controls, the weapon becomes useless.

Thus, I wonder why they have worries about such an event taking place, no less, that if they are capable of looking into ‘time’ ... they are likely already cognizant of what is going to happen, and how it can be thoroughly and completely prevented.

‘Just some thoughts ... and again, thank you for posting this narrative.’

2

level 1

aagosh

· 27 days ago

Many of the concepts in this post related to universal consciousness and its evolution have been beautifully described already by Meher Baba in his book God Speaks.

I have no doubt about the authenticity of this experience, in fact Meher Baba has also written about the existence of other life forms on other planets, some inferior and some superior to humans.

2

level 1

I wish I'd found this post earlier. OP's account is gone. I remain neutral in terms of the verity of this post, but I have so many questions.

2

level 1

Lanjin37

· 26 days ago

Obviously none of us know if you're the real deal, but reading this was highly intriguing and very enjoyable. Lately I've been going down the "human mutilations" rabbit hole and it's made me question whether I even want us to engage with ETs anymore. Whoever is committing those atrocities is certainly no friend to us, so I hope that there ends up being some other explanation for it as opposed to "we're being abducted and harvested by ETs for some reason."

So this makes me feel a little bit better, assuming it's true.

2

level 1

InternationalAttorny

· 26 days ago

I FOUND THE STORY THAT SEEMS TO CORRELATE THIS ONE.

It is from the Reddit EBE post earlier this year:

Discussion of the Scientist's info on the EBO (grey's) religion

This is quoted from the post by the scientist who claimed to be researching the biology of the alien. Only the religion part.

Question 3: I havent read everything in detail but can you expnd on the document on their religion?

EBOs believe that the soul is not an extension of the individual, but rather a fundamental characteristic of nature that expresses itself as a field, not unlike gravity. In the presence of life, this field acquires complexity, resulting in negative entropy if that makes sense. This gain in complexity is directly correlated with the concentration of living organisms in a given location. With time, and with the right conditions, life in turn becomes more complex until the appearance of sentient life. After reaching this threshold, the field begins to express itself through these sentient beings, forming what we call the soul. Through their life experiences, sentient beings will in turn influence the field in a sort of positive feedback loop. This in turn further accelerates the complexity of the field. Eventually, when the field reaches a "critical mass", there will be a sort of apotheosis. It's not clear what this means in practical terms, but this quest for apotheosis seems to be the EBOs main motivation.

The author of the document added his reflections and interpretations as an appendix. He specified that, for them, the soul field is not a belief but an obvious truth. He also argues that the soul loses its individuality after death, but that memory and experience persist as part of the field. This fact would influence the philosophy and culture of EBOs, resulting in a society that doesn't fear death but which places no importance or reverence on individuality. This "belief" compels them to seed life, shape it, nurture it, monitor it and influence it for the ultimate purpose of creating this apotheosis. Paradoxically, they have little or no respect for an individual's well-being.

Please be advised that I'm speaking from memory of something I read more than 10 years ago, so take the following with a grain of salt. Also, I'm not a philosopher or an artist, so please excuse my struggle to properly formulate the concepts and my dry terminology. Finally, note that this information comes from a document whose author was directly interacting with an EBO. It is not specified whether it was an ambassador, a crash survivor, a prisoner. The means of communication were not specified either.

2

level 1

[deleted]

· 26 days ago

The NSA is fully aware about visitations.

level 1

JunglePrada

· 24 days ago

So many more questions and thoughts prompted!

1. Are there confirmed other species bc this focuses a lot on one kind and if so what does this species think about them interacting with us/ Earth? What species are they? And do those have variable intentions with us ranging from positive to neutral to malicious?
2. Does this species abduct and probe for their research?
3. Is this the species that mutilates cattle and if so is it for research of one of our main food sources or do they themselves need to create a food source for themselves and want to use something based on ours bc we are related somehow if that thought makes sense
4. If their philosophy is right- does that negate the parallel universe theory? To our knowledge the universe is expanding and potentially cycles through collapses and expanses- are they proliferating life right up until our sun dies and/ or the universe collapses?
5. Because they are not born but created- who is creating them? Is that a maker- another alien species? Or do they make themselves now but someone else for them started....?
6. The Las Vegas story this year got high interest from me- thoughts on that validity and if it is- those were super tall!!! Diff species?
7. Are we to assume there's an underwater base they study us from? Or is there an actual colony of them living with us?
8. When you said they seem to proliferate life and more complexity will help drive this united conscious to self awareness hopefully- what does successful complexity look like? In my mind, if the value is that these individual loops die and come back into the fold- sending memories and experiences- is that the "complexity?" For a moment I thought hmm if that's what they want more of why would they just farm us and not care about long lives ie the countless innocent young lives dying in wars right now- but I suppose that doesn't constitute "complexity" of memories and life experiences? Are we feeding a mind- like an AI computer mind almost is one way I'm imagining it when you think about it needing inputs for self aware computing. I also think of being a microbiota in the gut who will never be able to comprehend the body that I am apart of... and my brain breaks a little. (side note has anyone ever glitched their consciousness/ self by asking who am I endlessly in the mirror? Bc I have since childhood and it's spooky when you disassociate from your own face- makes me think about my little loop of consciousness)

I wonder if it truly doesn't matter how you behave in this life then... like serial killers etc- we all fall back into the same pot.... Like yuck I don't want to be the same as that dude!! But he is me I am him? I have resistance to that. Hopefully but probably not the complexity they mention is used for "good" and it "learns" from those evil experiences and memories.... Weird thought to even wrap head around bc idk if it's even relevant functionally

9. Some initial burning questions I'd ask an alien are 1. Who made us? 2. What happens when we die/ will we ever be ourselves again or be with/ see loved ones? 3. Tell me everything you know about all other intelligent life you're aware of. 4) did aliens give us ancient technology back in the day and/or amp up our brain power to speed our evolution? 5) do psychedelics in fact help us peer behind the Curtain so to speak 6) is graham Hancock right? Have humans cycled through existence multiple times already here?

So many more but I'll stop dumping

2

level 1

sheeit, late to the party!

I love these kind of posts.... keep it coming, whoever yall be. Real or not, through all the exposition here, this stuff is my main source of pure entertainment, which is rare for me these days.

I didnt read any comments yet but after a few paragraphs I am thinking, this style of writing is the same as the EBO Scientist #1. either they all from the same chicken coop, are bros and regular hang out on reddit or this is the same larper.... please dont mind me saying... real or not, this is awesome.

edit: biochemistry might be the same everywhere in the universe ... damn this shook me. post more!

2

level 1

3spoop56

· 19 days ago

Whole lot of overlap with the EBO biologist post from last year. Which I believe for a while and then was convinced was a hoax. So does that make this more likely, or less? I don't even know anymore.

https://www.reddit.com/r/aliens/s/dxA9PEPsyt?utm_source=reddit&utm_medium=usertext&utm_name=aliens&utm_content=t1_kciaytq

2

level 1

Rambus Jarbus

· 6 days ago

I keep rereading this. This one feels right. I know this is most likely fake, but with what I have read I think this is it. This would also mean in my speculation that almost every planet is going to have some form of life even if it's just microbial.

2

level 1

kenja777

· 27 days ago

I suggest, if you have not, taking a serious look into the Mexican mummies 3' tall with three fingers and four toes. In reading this I see multiple references to ScFi movies, TV and books. My favorite is "ODO" of Deep Space Nine and Close Encounters.

5

level 1

noandthenandthen

· 27 days ago

You said they are monitoring us, and subtly manipulating us for their motivations for... complexification? Universal consciousness or self awareness? AKA borg? You also said they wanted to communicate more but could not due to the irresponsible program separating them. I have problems with this. It doesn't add up. At best this is all old info from the 50s, at worst a chat GPT larp. We are well beyond this by now

3

1 more reply

level 1

nebbby

· 27 days ago

My best working hypothesis is that these beings are an offshoot hominid species from Earth who presently live in the Earth's crust and experience life primarily in virtual reality, with rare manual expeditions to the surface. Does this contradict anything you came across?

3

level 1

ksmitherinzes

· 27 days ago

We are the universe looking back at itself. I had a long lasting ego death/dzogchen experience on a meditation retreat that convinced me of this. But that state of ego death (in Buddhism it's the first stage of enlightenment that eventually leads to a greater fullness, i.e a union of selflessness and ego) has no personality or self Center, it's completely empty of self and felt extremely cold to me. I rejected it because it lacked individuality and personality, everything becomes mechanistic. I think it's very similar to some kinds of dissociation people experience, but it's crystal clear and a very calm state.

All this to say, the phrase I used to describe it on the retreat and afterward when I would come in and out of the state was "I am the universe looking back at itself." I still believe this to be true although I rarely if ever have that experience anymore. Am now a lawyer and my job puts a lot of egoic pressure on me.

3

level 2

exztornado

· 27 days ago

I had a heavy surgery many years ago and was put under anaesthetics. Saw myself depart from my body and find myself in a void of nothingness. Then when I woke up from them I would describe that experience as a return not as waking up from something. Changed my life without me noticing it did. Only looking back at it now that I see that it did. I too struggle with the daily rat race at times but as they say before awakening chop wood carry water, after awakening chop wood, carry water.

2

level 3

ksmitherinzes

· 26 days ago

My personal opinion has been that high doses of anaesthetics, opiates etc can send you into full cessation of sensation, completely analogous to a nirvana experience but most often they cloud awareness and memory so people don't retain anything but a sense that they had a profound experience they want to have again. I didn't experience that because nirvana or "cessation" is that selfless conscious state I had without any sensation filling consciousness, probably what you experienced. So they're similar in that there's no self Center of the experience but cessation is more powerful. Like you said, nothingness or void. Also described as a room with nothing in it. As I understand, it's buddhist opinion that deep sleep is a cessation experience for everyone has every day, we simply don't remember it. This is part of the reason opiates are so addictive I believe, they bring you into a state of primordial consciousness you want to return to. It sounds like for some reason you retained a good memory of that cessation or "zero" which probably made it a salient spiritual experience you've kept with you. This is part of the reason cessation or nirvana experience on a retreat is so spiritually powerful, because you retain a clear memory of it that begins to impact everything you experience in life.

I truly wish you the best, it's very difficult living with a sense that you know something deeper about reality than those around you. Something that's encouraged me is that it's well accepted in Buddhist circles that having these experiences even once is enough to begin a slow but continual progression to greater selflessness and happiness because you're constantly comparing what you used to think about reality to what you know to be true about it from the experience. This slowly dispels the illusions of self, slowly peels back the veil of maya.

2

level 1

Stunning Release 795

· 27 days ago

You're all so gullible. This guy has just regurgitated all tropes of the visitors and lifted 100% of what that Redditor posted a few months back(mostly scientific about their genetics)but about their spirituality. Totally not believable.

2

level 1

Not sure if this is true but it's well written and proves a few things...

A creative and well thought out story can convince many people that what someone is writing is true.

It's easy to manipulate people.

Stories like this are why I believe there's government Spooks on Reddit. Sorting out what's true and what's not.

If it's not true, there's very smart people trying to purposely fuck with people's heads for their own entertainment because they're lacking in their own lives and get a thrill from lying to people. They chase that thrill. All it takes is one person to say "I believe what you're saying is true" for them to get that fix. NEVER write out "I believe you" when something can't be proven. Write something like "interesting" or "interesting IF it's true". There's less encouragement given to the bullshitter if it's bullshit!

If it is true, we will never know and that's why I stopped reading 75% in to the story. It's kind of a waste of time. I prefer more stories that can be backed up these days.

3

level 2

I've thought this as well. Many times I wondered to myself if something was typed up with the help of AI, as being a personal user myself, to produce fraudulent authenticity. I like to live by study it all, incase one day it's true ideology. Lol

3

level 2

I used to think stuff like that was ridiculous, but now I'm not so sure. If our visitors are right and the universe is constituted of consciousness, things like remote viewing and astral projection are possible, in theory.

31

level 1

[deleted]

· 27 days ago

I find this comforting in a way. And this definitely reinforces my view that there is a higher being (God) behind all this. And it pisses me off that governments treat them badly the way they do. They deserve respect and to be treated kindly. I would if I was blessed with meeting them.

2

2 more replies

level 1

rsoto2

· 27 days ago

The part about this 'testimony' (TBD) that gets me the most is the 'unethical behavior.' Think about it if we had fucks like Henry Kissinger orchestrating the meeting of extraterrestrial beings. We should be ashamed as a country

2

level 1

bigscottius

· 27 days ago

I wish I could believe. But.....LARPing is just so prevalent in this space. It wouldn't be hard to be smarter than me and fool me.

I want to believe

2

level 1

duuudewhat

· 27 days ago

This is some fun bob lazar fan fiction. Reveal yourself or this is all just bullshit. I'm sure the government could narrow down who you are if this was real just based on the information you provided and other ways to track you.

Like come on man. This "story" would be so much more interesting with a face to it and some kind of credentials and all that. Another "story" on the internet that basically just recycles what everyone says on here and 4chan just isn't that interesting

2

level 1

No_Reading7125

· 27 days ago

It looks like Punjabi Batman's signature style is evident here! However, it's quite possible that he's genuinely involved. It's hard to fathom how he manages to find so much time.

3

level 1

The_Bragaduk

· 27 days ago

Anonymity and Vagueness: The anonymity and vagueness of the author, especially in regard to specific details, make it difficult to objectively verify the claims. In science, transparency is a key element for credibility and verifiability.

Interdisciplinary Expertise: The author claims to have a background in anthropology and philosophy. However, these fields do not provide direct expertise in regards to extraterrestrial intelligences or advanced technologies.

Substantive Claims:

Exotic Intelligence: The idea of a non-human, intelligent species has not been scientifically confirmed or refuted to date. The existence of extraterrestrial life remains an open question.

Biological and Technological Descriptions: The detailed descriptions of the ETs and their technology are reminiscent of traditional reports about UFOs and aliens. However, these reports are often speculative and not scientifically substantiated.

Philosophy and Motivations of the ETs: The philosophical views and motivations described are highly speculative and resemble concepts from science fiction literature.

The Role of Government and Secrecy: The claim that such information is being kept secret by governments or special groups is a common theme in conspiracy theories. However, there is a lack of solid evidence to support such claims.

Scientific Methodology: The research methods and results described in the letter do not conform to usual scientific standards. Scientific findings are based on repeatable, verifiable experiments and peer-review processes.

1

level 1

Loucifer667

· 27 days ago

Are there any other species visiting that are less Mormonish? Maybe a species that gets drunk and does donuts around the solar system. Where are those guys? I want to chill with them.

1

2 more replies

6 more replies

level 1

There's no active recruitment for what is essentially more secretive than the Manhattan Project from universities. Being Mormon doesn't qualify someone to be read in. Sorry to break up the fun.

1

level 1

Imaginary-Double2612

· 25 days ago

 by mtvvia GIPHY

1

level 1

If these claims are accurate, it poses a significant national security concern, explaining the need for secrecy. The inconsistent, unclear, and illogical nature of the reported extraterrestrial interviews creates a challenge in discerning trustworthiness and true motivations. It's reasonable for organizations involved to avoid widespread public disclosure to prevent misinformation or malicious interpretations that could fuel enormous or civilization ending conflicts. Hence, it would appear to be the biggest national security issue in human history..

And on second thought, the monistic and no-individuality theme present during these alleged interviews sounds strikingly similar communism extrapolated on the limit...which certainly is a cause for absolutely immense concern.

1

level 1

PoorInCT

· 27 days ago

Completely fake.

You dont ask for permission to get certain docs. For fck sake, they dont give you a list of everything that they have and you get to pick and choose. This is the essential indication that this is a fake post.

If the document is not already in a secured library, which has a second set of biometrics, then you should have no idea that other documents exist.

-9

3 more replies

level 1

AngrySuperArdvark

· 27 days ago

Ok so, here is the problem with this... we know have two stories th EBO scientist and now this, who should we trust? For some reason this one sound more realistic.

0

1 more reply

level 1

PersonalViolinist528

· 26 days ago

 by VH1 via GIPHY

0

level 1

This reads like fanfic, compartmentalization is paramount in maintaining secrecy, and they gave what is essentially full access to an anthropologist? Nah.

Human creativity is derivative in nature, no one ever truly created something, all we ever really do is remix things. I can trace back every aspect of this creative writing assignment to pop culture scifi tropes.

The tunnel vision focusing on one species too definitely detracts from making this believable at all. Not buying it. I think its pretty apparent that there are multiple species visiting this planet, ie Varghina, the irkustk body, etc all look vastly different to the standard grey.

Why would you do this? Mislead people just for a dopamine rush?

0

level 1

ItsDinkleberg

· 27 days ago

"Each of these researchers had different backgrounds and were assigned to a different part of the project." But you have info on the origins, appearance, tech, and their society? Come on people, this is bait.

-4

level 1

In Heim's syntrometry, ideas are shifted up and down in the transdimensions by activity streams via the conceptual complexes of the metroplex totalitates $T(n)$. Metroplex totalitates are qualities that define the organizational grade. Starting at the organizational grade $T(7)$ they can change the probabilities for organizational states in matter. Living matter is defined by the hierarchically arranged metroplex totalities as the entlechiially layered causal networks of the ideas of living structures. By means of the metroplex totalities $T(n)$ the organization levels increasing from n can be identified with the following biologic structures: The living structures of $T(7)$ would be elementary biophores, the structures of the $T(8)$ = micelle structures, $T(9)$ = organelles, $T(10)$ = intracellular causal complexes, $T(11)$ = livable cells, $T(12)$ = multiple cell coherent tissue, $T(13)$ = tissue connections (for example volvox proto zoos), $T(14)$ = complete organs, $T(15)$ = organ groups of a closed, somatic entity. Here ends the aspect of the bios. The manifold merisms of the life process, i.e. the agglomeration of structures without higher organizations, are formed to a holistic entity by means of a holomorphism. This coherence is effected by a metroplex structure coming from $T(16)$. That permeates the whole structure $T(7)$ to $T(15)$ and by means of falling activity streams projects the holomorphism onto spatial structures.

Via these structures activity streams, too, rise to areas higher than $T(16)$. Some quantitative influences from the material area that are receptorally ascertainable by the soma are transformed into rising activity streams, so that the quantity of the physical influence is transformed into experience qualities. In the metroplex totalitates $T(15)$ to $T(24)$ the processing of a living structure's experiences take place. This area therefore corresponds to a psychological area. That means that the quantitative sensory processes in the physical area become qualities in an area lying outside space-time. Thinking, feeling, conscious acting are processes that take place outside the physical world.

With increasing organization, with rising metroplex grades $T(n)$, these channels multiply. The controlling of those activities takes place via these channels which Heim calls 'intermittent guiding metroplexes of a correlating connection', or in short ilkorsystems (from German 'intermittierende Leitmetroplexe einer korrelativen Verknüpfung'). They connect the activity streams in a way that a guiding idea can be enforced and retained in the soma. Each process of the split-up of an ilkor-channel that is described with factor λ creates 2 to the power of λ different channels via which activities can be transported into the soma. Living creatures of areas $T(7)$ to $T(10)$ only possess one such channel. λ is still zero. Creatures within $T(11)$ to $T(15)$ already possess one first split-up with $\lambda=1$, that is 2 control channels. That's a characteristic of flora. Animals already possess $2^2 = 4$ control channels. "The next step forward would be 2 to the power λ , which means 8. That's the level of primates, the primates we nowadays still have remnants of. (But I have the impression a huge part of humanity is still at that level, these $\lambda 3$ -types: 2 to the power 3). If you take primates, the brain stem of which, as in animal creatures in general, is very active and the limbic zones of which are linked to the sensory organs, actually all their lives and activities are driven by a drive- and lust-automatism. (Sensory stimuli, satisfaction of lust, relaxation, renewed excitation as general motif of activities). That's $\lambda 3$ -types. That's the case with primates. Then there's another step forward that should lead to the homo sapiens, namely the repeated doubling of the 24, i.e. $\lambda 4$ types with 16 channels. That seems to be the current human being to me. But having a cerebrum does not mean $\lambda 4$ yet. That starts at $\lambda 3$. With the many $\lambda 4$ types we still have the same behavior as with the $\lambda 3$ -types, though the potential over 16 channels is now there. Because 16 channels have a significantly higher potential to their quality than only 8. The repeated doubling that leads to 32, $\lambda 5$, would have to look completely different. Even the so-called enlightened ones don't get there. I think a $\lambda 5$ -combination has not been exceeded yet on earth. The number of these control channels is a measure for the different steps of consciousness. According to Heim, processes of consciousness can be described as descending and ascending activities in at least 8 control channels whereby activity streams can be more or less closely linked to the somatic structure. During sleep, for example, the activity streams retreat into areas beyond $T(24)$.

Neither does the brain create consciousness, nor does consciousness touch down to its somatic structure. Both organizations are partial structures of a 6-dimensional complex in different world dimensions that are mutually dependent in the sense of a monism. Creatures with 16 control channels form an autonomous, independent x_6 -entity that develops an additional holism which holds not only the biological, but also the psychological structure together in a holistic way. With this holism such creatures possess an autonomous persona – which would correspond to the term 'soul'. The structure of the persona can also stay autonomous, independent of the physical structures of $T(1)$ to

T(6). In principle, this would open up the possibility that the persona without having contact to the soma could consciously exist in the world or in parallel worlds separated by x5, and that fully consciously and with memory contents in a state unknown to us. That could explain the out-of-body experiences and would make us understand why there can be a temporary or continuous absence of the persona in deep coma.

In Heim's own words, as he already reported to the Zen master Gerda Ital:

“In some cases I had the same feeling as a Zen priest or Zen master if the exercise, for example archery, is suddenly taking place by itself. IT is acting. Not you have done it well, but ‘IT has done it’.

Sometimes – and that’s the most creative moments you can have as a human being – you have the feeling as if you’re only the tool and you say, dictate or write something that actually doesn’t originate in you. That has happened to me more than once while I was dictating these notebooks that I later further worked on in more detail. I always had the feeling that completely foreign thoughts were approaching me which only had to be recorded. But I was never able to tell where that came from. That only happened some times, strangely always in such moments where it seemed that I was at a loss. Then it happened.”

The New Worldview of the Physicist Burkhard Heim

Illobrand von Ludwiger

0

level 1

lurk902

· 26 days ago

If they are so advanced and have this amazing tech, why do they crash so often? Are they just bad drivers?

Fellas I want to believe too, but this sounds like the writers of Close Encounters and Super 8 had a baby.

0

1 more reply

level 1

AnActualBatDemon

· 25 days ago

Even if this is real just because one species is a hive mind with no individuality it doesnt mean we have to be one and it doesnt mean every sentient species is. For all we know these are just space hippies. Though i still think its wrong to mistreat them. Using this to bolster leftist group think is just missing the forest through the trees imo.

-1

level 1

Ubiquitousknicks1130

· 27 days ago

Total shot in the dark here but just looking at current BYU professors, this one caught my eye.

<https://anthropology.byu.edu/directory/jacob-r-hickman>

1

2 more replies

level 1

Strong-Message-168

· 27 days ago

My question is why is Grusch talking about multiple species of NHLs then? Could this be just one, or are there multiple forms of this kind, each engineered for something different?

1

2 more replies

2 more replies

level 1

mumwifealcoholic

· 27 days ago

I guess my only question is, should i be afraid for me and my family?

I like being an individual. I love individuals, my husband, my son.

I am feeling very unsettled.

1

4 more replies

level 1

PercentageSad937

· 27 days ago

If this is true,

Not done reading but am immediately upset by the treatment of our other worldly brothers and sisters. This is why I wish they would contact civilians directly.

1

level 1

I'm interested in the interviewers. Were they direct hires? Did they share a common background? Was technology used in any way to communicate or pure old fashioned brainpower only? How could they ensure the beings weren't manipulating their minds? Was there "protection"?

1

level 1

Express_Work

· 27 days ago

Sounds like a joyless existence. How do they dissent? Can they even? Is it pure logic, or do they all come to the same conclusion simultaneously?

1

level 1

AsleepAtTheFeel

· 27 days ago

Thank you OP for sharing. Real or not the post is interesting. What's nagging me about this though is that what OP describes doesn't track with how SCI programs are supposed to be structured. Given the secrecy around this particular domain, I'm surprised such a broad spectrum of information was given to OP and the team they worked on. Clearly, someone would have to compile data on this, as research would have to involve multiple disciplines. But to give that task to someone green to the IC/MIC? And then release them? Then again, I have no idea how these programs are run, so it could be normal. I'm on the fence.

1

1 more reply

level 1

Neat Echidna 6646

· 26 days ago

The absolute strikes again. Consciousness created instantaneously across the universe to experience itself in all aspects. Than to return and download the information to assist in the continued process of creation.

1

level 1

A Spiritual Artist

· 26 days ago

The bit about pissing through its skin is also what that online claimed whistleblower "EBOscientist" said. They said more about the DNA though and sounded like it was engineered. An engineered creature makes great sense for explaining why it'd be like Earth life so much.

1

level 1

Artimities

· 26 days ago

It really does seem like speed it picking up and we are coming closer to the truth.

My one bit of advice to anybody that happens to read this... we need to do our part. It starts with exercising our rights to vote. We need to get the dipshits out of office and put in people that are willing to share the truth!!!!

1

level 1

zilkinMeinFreunde

· 26 days ago

This is extremely interesting. Also makes sense for aliens whos culture is being part of the collective (tech that connects them to each other and their crafts) to also have a philosophy where their version of God is also a collective universe comprised of many consciousnesses working together toward a common goal.

On the other hand, western civilization, always valued strong individuality and our version of God is more similar to us, a man.

This is really interesting stuff, and that also explains why they didn't conquer us. It would be counterproductive for them to do that if end goal is raising universal consciousness by allowing other races to evolve.

1

level 1

Any-Lion-738

· 26 days ago

The lattice being hooked into everything and made of normal elements like aluminum and copper is interesting. I've been reading about electro culture gardening recently that talks about having gardens flourish when you put a stake wrapped in copper in the soil. . Any other elements outside of those two?

1

level 1

catastrophdisclosure

· 26 days ago

Interesting note:

The username is a possible anagram for the word "Linoleates"

What does linoleate do?

As part of membrane phospholipids, linoleic acid functions as a structural component to maintain a certain level of membrane fluidity of the transdermal water barrier of the epidermis.

1

level 1

curtisanna

· 26 days ago

Wow, your journey sounds like a mix of mystery, bureaucracy, and curiosity. It's fascinating how unexpected skills can come in handy. Looking forward to hearing more about your experiences with this exotic intelligence.

1

level 1

Substantial Spell 46

· 26 days ago

On the part you are describing the classics flying disks you end with "On many occasions these have landed, completely empty." Are they just abandoning them?

1

level 1

SeaworthinessUseful

· 25 days ago

"There are hundreds of these things in orbit produced by this intelligence." Seen dozens of videos from MRB3333 of what appears to be fleets and armadas of these things with captured footage from the ISS btw.

1

level 1

SpringChikn85

· 25 days ago

Sounds like we started out as pets and now we're basically parasites on the scalp of the earth and preventing it from thriving. They seem like white blood cells sent with the goal of redirecting our destructive antics in order to get back on track..where that track leads may not be for us to know considering we're too self persevering to care about the universal consciousness or it's expansion/complexities and even if we found out the "grand design" we'd somehow make it about us.

1

level 1

MotorbikeRacer

· 18 days ago

It seems really short sighted to separate them from their crafts. They would be able to learn much more from them if they didn't separate them.

My questions - Do you think any of the tech has been weaponized ?

On a recent Tucker Carlson podcast he said that disclosure would be too dark for people to understand (after speaking with some top officials off the record) , yet David Grusch said the powers that be are more worried about litigation and getting sued than any type of mass ontological shock ... so which one is it ? Is there a darker side to disclosure ? Or maybe a combination of both.

Is NHI interested in humans knowing that get exist ?

From for your studies , do you think we are ready for disclosure ? And what do you think the ramifications of disclosure would be to society at large ?

1

level 1

3pieceandsoda3

· 17 days ago

lol this is almost verbatim from the show The 100 with the last 4 years of whistleblower info layered over it and a few modifications to the story.

Was a good read though, 10th grade readability with great pacing and structure. You should write a book.

1

level 1

zoopysreign

· 11 days ago

I am shocked they don't have litigators on staff. They're used to document review, broad issue spotting, researching, and becoming subject matter experts on new topics. Not in any way suggesting they're as qualified as these various individuals staffed on this project, but they'd be good at doing an effective cull with some sme spot checking and oversight.

1

level 1

Shantivanam

· 9 days ago

Do not buy this collectivist agenda. You do not need complexification to be one with The One. You are already one with it, and it is literally as simple as it can get. It is Absolute Truth. It is without differentiation, despite yielding all differentiation. It is the ground of your being. It is existence itself. Without it, you would not exist at all. No complexification, collective, or zerg/borg hivemind is necessary. Anything that wants you to give up your identity or subsume you into a "superintelligence" is trying to con you out of your god-given independence and freedom. Resistance is not futile. Do not buy into this non-human/delusional human non-sense. You stand alone before God. Stay free.

1

level 1

Maximus26515

· 9 days ago

What's wild to me is you bring up. "Universal consciousness" and it becoming self-aware. We have all seen those models of what they believe the universe looks like if looked at through a macro lense. It looks exactly like the synapses of a brain. That can't be a mere coincidence.

1

level 1

eon047

· 9 days ago

They sound like they believe in many concepts of universal consciousness in similarity to buddhism or gnosticism, or even some of the more mystical ways of thinking that were promoted through certain orders(rosicrucianism, pythagoreanism, platonism etc)throughout history. Almost makes me think they have a form of....religion. this post at the least is very highly interesting. If they are telepathic, I can see why maybe they do not want to communicate more openly with us, or maybe it is as the professor says, it simply is beyond understanding at our current level. Disclosure needs to happen so we can get some much more solid answers.

1